

- David Klemm is Director in the M&A group in Credit Suisse's Frankfurt office. He joined Credit Suisse in 2000 in London and worked there in the technology and energy industry groups.
- David has experience in a wide-range of M&A transactions, with a particular focus on transactions involving privatizations or public ownership aspects. For instance, he has worked for Bayer AG in their public takeover of Schering AG (German Domestic M&A Deal 2006), he was advising the German Federal Government on the privatization of the German Air Traffic Control System (DFS), and has worked for TXU Europe in their sale of a stake in Stadtwerke Kiel to MVV AG of Germany.
- He has recently advised Techem AG on its defense against an unsolicited offer by Macquarie Bank Ltd. and ExxonMobil and Royal Dutch Shell on their sale of the BEB Transport gas pipeline business.
- Other clients include Infineon, STMicroelectronics, France Telecom and Micronas. He worked for Booz Allen Hamilton and Bear, Stearns & Co before joining Credit Suisse.
- David holds degrees in economics from the University of Oxford and London School of Economics, both of which he attended as a Rhodes Scholar. He has also received the Dipl.-Kfm.-degree from Catholic University of Eichstätt.